

Contents

|                                                                                                                                                                                       |     |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Acknowledgements                                                                                                                                                               | vii |
| Introduction. Thinking Ethnographically about PsychologyMikkel Kenni Bruun                                                                                          | 1   |
| Chapter 1. Mixing Treatment Modalities: An Ethnography ofMental Healthcare Bricolage in CanadaDina Bork                                                         | 27  |
| Chapter 2. Treating Patients ‘Who Don’t Speak’: The Challengeof Treating Children with Eating Disorders in a Residential Facilityin ItalyGiulia Sciolli     | 47  |
| Chapter 3. More Likely Psychological? Exploring Mental Troublesand Psychology in OuagadougouAnnijje van Dijk                                                    | 63  |
| Chapter 4. When the Counsellors Give: Material Support andTherapeutic Agency in State-Based Psychological CounsellingServices in Sri LankaNadia Augustyniak | 81  |
| Chapter 5. In (the) Practice: Pioneering Psychotherapy in UgandaJulia Vorbölter                                                                                     | 101 |
| Chapter 6. Throwing Out the Psyche: Scientific Persuasions inBritish PsychotherapyMikkel Kenni Bruun                                                            | 115 |
| Chapter 7. Encoding Wellness: On Cultures of Risk whenBuilding Digital Mental Wellbeing AppsJennifer Cearn                                                      | 135 |

|                                                                                                      |     |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Afterword. An Anthropology of Psychology in theTwenty-First CenturyKeir Martin | 151 |
| Index                                                                                         | 165 |