

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations	vii
Preface	ix
Acknowledgments	x
List of Abbreviations	xi
Introduction. “We’re Building the Plane While We’re Flying It”: A Case Study of Long-Term Care Workers during COVID-19 in North Carolina	1
1. Perspectives of Regional Area Agency on Aging Staff and Long-Term Care Advocates: A Rapid Qualitative Appraisal	19
2. Challenges in Providing Care in Residential Long-Term Care Communities: “It Spread Like Wildfire”	38
3. Home and Community-Based Programming during COVID-19: Finding Resilience in Crisis	56
4. Activities and Engagement: Avoiding Isolation and Loneliness	73
5. Caring for People with Dementia during COVID-19 Dena Shenk, Andrea Freidus, and Christin Wolf	94
6. The Perspectives of Administrators and Managers: Providing Long-Term Care Throughout the Pandemic	111
7. A Linguistic Analysis: Roles and Professional Identities in Defining Reality Boyd Davis and Christin Wolf	131
8. Caring for Older Adults in Residential Long-Term Care during COVID-19 in the United States and Switzerland: Balancing Protection and Social Isolation Andrea Freidus, Dena Shenk, Megan Davies, Christin Wolf, and Sandra Staudacher	146

Conclusion. Lessons Learned and Applications as We Look to the Future	165
References	176
Index	187