

Contents

Introduction	1
Ruxandra Trandafoiu
<hr/>
Part I. Migration
<hr/>
1 Houses in Motion: The Reimagining of Time and Space as Anomalous in Representations of Mobility	17
Chris Campanioni
<hr/>
2 Hybridity in Mission London : Challenging the Othering Discourse	38
Antonina Anisimovich
<hr/>
3 Just Like Us: Migration and the 'Prosthetic Western' in Contemporary German Cinema	59
Owen Evans
<hr/>
4 Melodrama, Realism and Internal Migration: Cinematic Representation of Internal Migration in Turkey (1964–1990)	79
Ali H. Kocatürk
<hr/>
Part II. Dislocation
<hr/>
5 No Man's Land: Rafi Pitts' Soy Nero Tells Us What It Means to Be Constantly Confronted with Borders	105
Andreas Hudelist
<hr/>
6 Bollywood, Mobility and Partition Politics: Representation of Displaced Muslims in Films on Indo–Pak Partition	122
Sony Jalarajan Raj and Rohini Sreekumar
<hr/>

7	Frames, Stereotypes and Authorial Politics: The Transits and Landings of Migrants in Italian Cinema Gaia Peruzzi, Marco Bruno and Alessandra Massa	144
8	'I Am Not Here to Just Be En Vogue ': Talking about the Politics of Dislocated Filmmaking, the Clarity of the 'Third Eye' and Having a Place in Your Country's Film Memory with Egyptian-British Director Khaled El Hagar Ruxandra Trandafoiu and Roger Shannon	162
	Postscript. Interview Transcripts with Egyptian-British Filmmaker Khaled El Hagar Conducted by Roger Shannon	179
	Index	198
